

Abstract

An electric motor, in particular a starter device for internal combustion engines in which a current-limiting electric resistor (57) with a negative
5 temperature coefficient is connected at the beginning of the main current path (49) of an electromagnetically excitable rotor (53) of the electric motor (16). The electric resistor (57) contains at least one monocrystalline semiconductor.

(Fig. 1)